

- A Tree for You

Rent a tree. Get its harvest.

A real fruit tree on a real farm, tended all season, then picked, packed and shipped to your door.

A tree of your own, miles from home.

THE PROBLEM

The fruit we buy has no story.

- Supermarket fruit is picked unripe, stored for weeks, and tastes of almost nothing.
- You never know which farm it came from, or who grew it.
- Small fruit farmers sell to middlemen for very little, and stay invisible.

A whole generation of kids has never seen where a mango actually grows.

THE SOLUTION

Adopt a tree. Get its fruit.

- Rent a real fruit tree on a partner farm for the season.
- We tend it and send you photos as it grows.
- At peak ripeness we pick, pack and ship its harvest to you.

Your own tree. Its own fruit.

About 25 million tonnes a year, more than any other country.

HOW THE MONEY WORKS

We earn on every tree.

One tree rents for ₹2,500 a season

Farmer, care, picking, shipping

₹1,500

You keep

₹1,000

That is 40 paise of every rupee. Many adopters take more than one tree, and most renew next season, so each sign-up is repeating seasonal income, not a one-time sale.

TEAM

Arjun Reddy, founder.

I grew up on my family's mango farm. I watched good farmers get paid a pittance, and city cousins eat fruit that tasted of nothing. A Tree for You fixes both ends at once.

THE FARMS

Partner families

Farmers who have grown fruit for decades. They tend the trees and pick at ripeness.

THE BUSINESS

Me

I run the app, the adopters and the shipping, and I keep the farmers paid fairly.

THE ASK

What I need next.

- 01 500 trees adopted next mango season.
- 02 A partner who has run farm logistics or cold chain.
- 03 Working capital of ₹15 lakhs for farmer advances, packing and shipping.
